

School Aid Bill Killed In House Destroyed By Amendment On Antisegregation

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 1 1/2-billion-dollar school aid bill, which had an "acceptable" label from the White House, was killed in the House Thursday.

This was the second year in a row that the House has rejected an aid bill, and the pattern of destruction was the same — adoption of an antisegregation amendment and then rejection of the whole thing.

The final vote was closer this year, however — 208-203 as compared to 224-194 last year.

And there was some last minute interest in an argument over whether President Eisenhower really cared very much whether the bill passed or not.

After it was all over, press secretary James C. Hagerty said the White House would have no comment.

On the final test, 111 Republicans—including Rep. Halleck of Indiana, the assistant GOP floor leader—and 97 Democrats voted to kill the bill. Against killing it were 125 Democrats and 77 Republicans.

Wainwright Offered The antisegregation amendment was offered by Rep. Wainwright (R-N.Y.), over administration opposition. Eisenhower had asked that what he called the separate problem of racial integration not be thrown into the school aid controversy.

But Wainwright was unmoved. He proposed that no federal funds be used to help schools in districts which do not comply with the Supreme Court's ruling against segregation.

"It is the rankest hypocrisy," Wainwright told the House, "to vote civil rights with one hand and put up the other the next day to take these precious rights away."

153-126 To Kill Bill The Wainwright amendment was adopted on a standing vote of 153-126. The House thereupon voted 153-126, again on a standing vote, to kill the whole bill.

This standing vote had only tentative status, and Rep. Howard (Continued on Page Eleven)

Calls Threatening Huntington, W. Va. Mayor Continue

HUNTINGTON, W. Va. (P)—The would-be assassin who shot at Mayor Eugene Willis Wednesday night apparently isn't giving up. Police confirmed that the popular 42-year-old Republican received another threatening call Thursday.

Neither the police nor Willis have thrown any light on a motive.

Willis said he has received telephone calls threatening his life for the past six weeks. He didn't make the contents of the calls public, but last Friday he applied for and received permission to carry a gun.

Wednesday night, as he was returning home about 10:30 from a meeting at City Hall, he noticed a car following him. He eased the run out of its holster and laid it beside him on the seat.

As he turned into his driveway, he said, a shot from the trailing car—by now almost on him—entered the open window beside him, skinned by his head and drilled through the closed window on the right.

He told police he fired twice at the car speeding away in movie-land fashion—once through his windshield and once as he leaped out of the car. He could not tell if his shots were effective.

U.S. Proposes Group To Study Control Of Outer Space Objects

LONDON (AP) — The United States proposed Thursday that during the first stage of disarmament a scientific committee should work out a way for devoting all outer space missile research to peaceful purposes.

Harold E. Stassen told the United Nations Disarmament subcommittee Russia and the West should join forces to find a way of controlling all objects sent into outer space.

He said the first stage of any disarmament treaty should include a firm commitment by all signatory nations that such a committee would be created.

The actual banning of such research, however, would not come until the second stage of disarmament—or until after scientists had agreed on a system of enforcement.

Thursday's proposal appeared to make a much more cautious approach, if not an outright change in attitude, on the part of the United States toward the missile problem.

Sassen proposed on April 25, in the subcommittee's first round of discussions that all research on Inter-Continental Ballistic Missiles actually be handed in the first stage of disarmament.

Subsequently, however, missiles and other phases of disarmament were discussed in Washington on May 25 in a top-level meeting which led to a new U.S. plan for partial disarmament. In addition, missiles, like aerial inspection, have been the subject of lengthy private consultations between the United States and other Western nations.

Soviet delegate Valerian Zorin, who had never announced either his acceptance or rejection of the first U.S. proposal, did not accept or reject Thursday's statement. He said Russia will study the proposal in the light of its own past proposals on the subject.

On the other side of Tunisia, Morocco got independence from the French about the same time the Tunisians won their independence, but the monarchy of Sultan Mohammed V seems solidly entrenched at Rabat with no apparent thought of a republic. Both Tunisia and Morocco support independence for Algeria from France.

The calmly undertaken revolutionary change in form of government was effected by the Constituent Assembly.

Bourguiba won grudging freedom from the French protectorate less than two years ago through his Neo-Destour—Independence—Party.

Thursday he proclaimed the ousting of the Bey.

The new president has always been friendly to the United States and has proclaimed acceptance of the Eisenhower Middle East Doctrine.

Brookshire also said Olson underwent an ulcer operation in another hospital about a year and a half ago.

He said Olson re-entered the Woodlawn Hospital Tuesday complaining of stomach pains and nausea.

Olson's widow, Doris, 60, requested an autopsy, which was performed by Dr. Francis Archer, a Woodlawn pathologist. Brookshire said Dr. Archer notified police and the coroner's office after finding the instrument.

Dr. Morris T. Friedel, who said he along with Dr. Edward Goldberg performed the June 29 operation, estimated Olson was on the operating table "a little more than an hour." Dr. Goldberg could not be reached for comment.

"It is my understanding," said Dr. Friedel, "that Olson was hospitalized Tuesday with a coronary occlusion."

The Air Ministry statement said Izzki was burned out by cannon during 12 strikes by British war planes Wednesday.

"Before commencing the strikes the pilots ascertained there was no movement and no sign of life within the fort," the communique said. The occupants had been forewarned of attack in leaflets dropped by the RAF.

It added that further air strikes were planned against another rebel stronghold at Niwma, 20 miles from Izzki, but that these would be carried out only after 48 hours' notice to the occupants.

Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd told Parliament only military targets were struck by the RAF and only after advance warning was given. "So far as we know, no casualties have taken place," he said.

The British - officered private army of the Sultan is being used in ground phases of actions against the rebels, Lloyd added. He accused Egyptian sources in Cairo of circulating false information about the situation.

The Soviet Union, Communist Chinese and satellite press and radio expand their attacks on Britain, accusing it of "British colonial domination" tactics "to defend the mercenary oil interests."

"Smallish" Atom Device Fired ATOMIC TEST SITE, Nev. (P)—The 10th atomic device of the summer test series, a smallish one, was fired Thursday morning from a balloon 500 feet up.

The detonation, a closed shot from which newsmen were barred at Yucca Flat Test Center, was viewed from Angel's Peak, 55 miles distant, as a double mushroom cloud after a brilliant flash that shattered the pre-dawn stillness.

Thursday's weapon was less powerful than those used against Japanese cities in World War II. They had the energy of 20,000 tons of TNT.

WINDFALL FOR WIDOW HASTINGS, Mich. (P)—Harry Reiger found a wad of paper in a safety shoe he was fitting on at the E. W. Bliss Co. The wad turned out to be a packet of money totaling $1,000.

The shoes originally had been bought by David A. Hiscutt, 60, also an employee of the Bliss Co., who died last June 6. Hiscutt's widow had returned the shoes, saying he never wore them. Company officials gave her the money.

Incidentally, he managed to keep the pace to the end. His last caption says: "And of course the national bird is the Turkey."

Jury Trials-Big Issue In Civil Rights Debate

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate plunged into debate Thursday on the biggest remaining issue in the civil rights bill — whether to guarantee jury trials in certain contempt cases involving alleged violations of voting rights.

Sens. O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.) and Kefauver (D-Tenn.) both argued for an amendment to provide such trials for persons charged with criminal contempt of court for violating voting rights injunctions.

A jury trial amendment also was supported by Senate Majority Leader, Johnson (D-Tex.), who said that while courts must have power to enforce their orders people accused of crimes "should have the opportunity to make their case before a jury of their peers."

But Minority Leader Knowland (R-Calif.) contended a jury trial amendment would "greatly weaken the effectiveness" of the bill. Knowland, in addition to being the GOP leader, heads a loose coalition of Republicans and Northern Democrats working for civil rights legislation.

One argument used by opponents of the jury trial amendment is that Southern white juries wouldn't convict when Negro voting rights were involved.

Both O'Mahoney and Kefauver have introduced similar jury trial amendments.

Kefauver said the Senate has drawn a clear distinction between civil and criminal contempt, with the right to trial by jury provided only in the latter type of case.

The Senate ran out of speakers at 5:32 p.m. and recessed until noon Friday.

Senate lines have not been drawn firmly yet on the jury trial issue. A conference of all GOP senators was called for 9:30 a.m. Friday to discuss the question.

Southern Democrats scheduled a meeting of their own for half an hour later to decide whether to support the amendment in the form offered by O'Mahoney.

Knowland said at the opening of Thursday's session that the administration still has a "good civil rights bill" despite the major surgery performed on it in the Senate.

Supporters of the legislation, Knowland said, will now concentrate on preserving its right-to-vote section.

The Senate voted 52-38 Thursday to strip the bill of all enforcement powers except those protecting voting rights. Knowland fought to retain a section giving the attorney general authority to act in the whole field of civil rights, including racial integration of the schools.

Man Near Death From Burns Received In Bizarre Accident NEW HAVEN, Conn. (P)—A Hartford man was near death Thursday night from third-degree burns he received Wednesday night when he was showered with blazing gasoline in a bizarre truck accident.

It brought injury to 66 other persons, many of whom also were burned.

A hospital spokesman said the burns covered nearly three-quarters of the body of Wilfred Godfrey, 25, who was riding the truck as a hitchhiker.

He was one of five persons hospitalized following the accident which police said happened when the truck driver, Woodford Underwood, 39, also of Hartford, slammed on the brakes of the heavy vehicle to avoid hitting a dog.

Underwood, thrown from the truck, is on a hospital critical list with fractured ribs and possible internal injuries.

Godfrey was trapped in the splintered cab of the vehicle when

28-Square-Foot Hole Ripped In Fuselage

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A passenger who had insured his life for $125,000 was blown out of an airliner Thursday in a weird mystery 10,000 feet above the Southern California desert.

The twin-engine Western Airline Convair made a safe landing with a 28-square-foot hole in its side. Twelve other passengers and three crew members were unhurt.

Blown from the plane was 52-year-old S. F. Binstock, a retired North Hollywood jeweler who flew to Las Vegas, Nev., early Wednesday night then took an early morning return flight. His body had not been found hours after he plunged from the plane.

The Air Force Thursday afternoon found fragments of the fuselage in the hills about 20 miles southeast of George Air Force Base, where the plane landed.

Investigators first believed an explosive had ripped the hole in the airliner's fuselage but absence of powder marks plus the discovery of what appeared to be four bullet holes produced an even more bizarre possibility.

There was speculation that the holes might have been the cause of an explosive decompression which blew out the section of fuselage but Western Airlines Vice President D. T. Renta said "apparently there must have been an explosion."

Not Bullet Holes He expressed the opinion that the four holes were not due to bullets but occurred in some other manner "when the metal skin of the plane was pierced or pulled out."

The plane took off from Las Vegas at 2:50 a.m. The explosion occurred at 3:37 a.m.

Pilot Milton Shirk of Los Angeles radioed that he had "an emergency" then reported: "The right rear side of the aircraft has been blown out. I'm going to George Air Force Base."

Heard Bang Pilot Shirk said upon arrival here that he heard a bang when the fuselage gave way and "I thought somebody ran into me."

He sent copilot Seth Oberg of Los Angeles back to look at the damage, then decided to land as quickly as possible. Shirk said he had been cruising at about 210 miles an hour and decreased his speed slightly as a safety measure. He said the maneuverability of the plane was not affected.

Harry Morrison, a passenger from Inglewood, Calif., said: "There was a hell of a noise. I was waiting for the plane to become unstuck and fall down."

He said the passengers remained relatively calm.

State Auditor Returns $146,000

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (P)—State Auditor Albert S. Smith said Thursday his office is turning back $146,000 to the state's general revenue fund from a deficiency appropriation voted by the Legislature to cover shortages in the office resulting from thefts of Orville Hodge.

When the Legislature made the appropriation of $369,239, Smith said, there was a backlog of unpaid bills, including those for auditing service, office rent, telephone service and business machine rentals.

The bills could not be paid because the appropriation for those items had been depleted by Hodge while he was auditor.

Smith said all the outstanding obligations have been paid. Left over from the deficiency appropriation was $112,000, part of the amount earmarked for reorganizing examination of financial institutions, plus $34,000 saved by economies.

Deposed Miss U.S. Sued By Girl Who Ran Second

BALTIMORE (P)—Mary Leona Gage Ennis, the dethroned Miss United States, was sued Thursday by the girl who ran second to her in the Miss Maryland contest.

Named co-defendant in the $300,000 suit by Miss Mary Callie Hill was the sponsor of the Miss Maryland contest, the Walters Academy and Fashion Guild, Inc.

Miss Hill accused Mrs. Ennis and the Academy of harpooning her big chance to cash in on her blonde beauty — although her charge was couched in legal terminology.

The Miss Maryland contest was a stepping-stone to the Miss Universe contest last week in Long Beach, Calif.

The raven-haired Mrs. Ennis, posing as a miss, won the contest. In Long Beach, she also won the Miss United States Title. She was still in the running for Miss Universe when her marriage to an Air Force sergeant leaked out.

Mrs. Ennis was dethroned and sent home.

Miss Hill's suit, filed in Superior Court, said the contest rules required contestants to be single.

Rescue Motorist Trapped In Car In Roadside Pond

SEAVIEW, Wash. (P)—A motorist who crouched trapped in his overturned car in a roadside pond for 10 hours, was recovering Thursday in a hospital here.

During his ordeal he had only a four-inch air space between the overturned floor of his car and the water level.

William Golden, 45, Portland taxi driver, said his experience was all the more harrowing because as he crouched in the water-filled car, he had with him the constant memory of the drowning of his son seven years ago.

Golden was driving toward the coast on a clam-digging trip when he apparently dozed at the east end of the Fort Columbia tunnel.

The car plunged down a 10-foot embankment and came to rest in the roadside pond.

This was at 10:15 p.m. Golden estimated later, because his watch stopped then. All through the night he kept his face pressed onto the thin air space.

A passing truck driver, David Auld of Astoria, finally spotted Golden's overturned car. He called police and a wrecker soon had the car and Golden—then near collapse—out of the water.

He was hospitalized here for treatment of shock and exposure.

'A Funny Race'

There's a movie bouncing around called "The French They Are a Funny Race." Yes, and puzzling, too.

Countless times they have behaved politically as if they wished France were a sort of earth satellite which might quickly be transported to some realm of outer space utterly free of today's vexing world problems.

Great lovers of good living—and fine practitioners of the art—the French seem more or less continually distressed that the troubling events of the East-West struggle have intruded upon their purpose.

Time and again in moments of world crisis the French have let minor political issues be the cause for unseating one of their postwar governments. For days, weeks and even months they have floundered, leaderless, when the hour called for a high sense of responsibility toward our common freedoms.

They killed the idea of a general European army to assist the defense against communism. And only reluctantly did they welcome as a substitute Germany's entry into NATO to stiffen that bulwark of the West.

But now we come to the curious two-sidedness which makes the French so baffling. For they played a leading role in the establishment of the European Coal and Steel Community, until now the boldest step ever taken toward a real and effective economic unity for Europe.

And today they are in the van of a far broader movement to attain that unity—the pending treaties for a so-called common market and an atomic energy pool in Europe.

In a vote impressive for enlisting almost complete support from the decisive middle of the road parties, the French National Assembly approved both these treaties and thus France's participation in these historic steps to a united Europe.

Five other nations must ratify the pacts, but France's firm action gives the movement exactly the drive it needs to win full endorsement.

This was highly responsible political behavior of an order that suggests that, on second thought, the French may be willing to keep their earth satellite parked in the garage a while longer.

Boyle's Column

NEW YORK (P) — Anyone who loves the theater can have a wonderful time in the average business office just watching how its inhabitants kill time.

In the average office, you watch anywhere from 16 to 100 actors putting on individual shows at the same time.

"Nor is office acting in any sense on a lower level than that seen on Broadway. Actually it's far more subtle. Almost no showoff can be taught to step up on a stage and mouth a few memorized lines or gestures. But the acting skill shown by an office actor is pretending to work while really only killing time requires an ability to improvise under pressure, the real test of greatness in any field.

In this respect, it must be admitted, the American business world produces hundreds of thousands of unassuming Barrymores every year.

They are "the great pretenders"—those highly polished art consists in appearing to be vitally busy while actually doing nothing but keeping an eye on the clock until quitting time.

If you look around, maybe you'll find some of the following types of timekillers acting in your own office:

1. The efficient housekeeper—every morning he spends cleaning out his desk, every afternoon rearranging his files. But he is never quite ready tomorrow to attack the day before yesterday's work.

2. The preening ferret—with brows knit in agonizing thought, hands locked behind his back, he stalks endlessly around the office as if in search of one single snower to all the firm's problems. His box score at nightfall: 20 trips to the water cooler, 7 to the men's room.

3. The dubious lover—this married Romeo, holding a business letter in his hand as a prop, stares from a steno-grapher to steno-grapher, whispering, "next year I'll take you to Havana, but right now how about a weekend in Philadelphia?" But if one of the girls really took him up on his proposition, he'd melt away faster than the abominable snowman.

4. The harried doer—he rolls up his sleeves and buries himself up to his armpits in a pile of important papers on his desk. He keeps a wary eye, however, so that no one can peek over his shoulders and see that the papers consist of his personal bills, his household budget, his state and federal income tax returns, and a small pamphlet entitled, "Ten Easy Ways to Pay off a Home Mortgage."

5. The lonely heart—believing that two can act better than one, he goes over to the other fellow's desk and asks him nonsense questions such as, "Do you think the light in here is ruining our eyes?" or, "If you could retire right now, where would you want to live?"

6. The dull coward—this witless pest doesn't have enough originality to invent his own methods of shirking work, so he imitates the others. But he does it so poorly that he endangers the whole office, and everyone has a desire to poison him.

7. The daredevil—figuring that all life is merely a bold bluff, this wily gambler does no work at all. But after sitting for two hours with both feet on his desk, he strolls into the boss's office at 11 a.m., and says cheerfully, "All clear, chief, what can I do for you now?"

There they are—seven office characters in search of an audience. And in case the boss suddenly chooses to death on a martini olive during an important business luncheon, which of these seven career timekillers will get his job?

Naturally the best actor wins. Nine out of 10 times the daredevil will become boss—if he isn't fired first.

HOLLYWOOD NOTES

By PATRICK MCNULTY

(For Bob Thomas)

HOLLYWOOD (P)—Peter Gowland earns $40,000 a year snapping sexy pictures of scantily clad movie beauties in his living room. Now, men, doesn't that sound like an ideal way to earn a living?

"It certainly is," confirms Gowland, "and my wife thinks so, too."

His wife, Alice, who acts as his assistant, puts it this way: "It's nice to see a man do what he likes."

However, Gowland says taking glamour pictures is business, strictly business.

But what a business! During the past 10 years, Gowland, 41, has built a reputation as one of Hollywood's best photographers of glamour and sex. Result: The loveliest ladies in movie-land, both famed and unknown, beat a path to his door.

The door is on a modern studio-home in a rustic canyon in Santa Monica about one mile from the ocean.

There Gowland has filled his lens with Jayne Mansfield, Arlene Dahl and Terry Moore, among other Hollywood lovelies—not to mention scores of starlets and models.

The key to successful glamour photography is a good model, Gowland explained. The model must be not only photogenic but also able to fall into poses easily and naturally.

Another thing: The model and photographer must work in a relaxed atmosphere. That's why Gowland thinks his home is ideal. In addition to an elaborate studio in the house, the woodsy three-quarter acre site offers many natural props—a running stream, huge gnarled trees, a colorful garden.

To break any picture-taking tension, Gowland frequently calls a recess for a plunge in the patio pool. He also uses the pool for swimming pictures and has a waterproof camera case for underwater shots.

Gowland usually hires his models, paying $25 an hour to $250 a day depending on the girl and the picture.

Studios are anxious for him to photograph their stars for free. They realize a Gowland pin-up often gets wide play in magazines and newspapers.

Good models are hard to find, Gowland said, and are subject to the law of diminishing returns. There is a constant demand for new faces and figures.

Gowland's current favorite is Sandra Edwards, a raven-haired 19-year-old mother.

"Most of my best models have children," he said. "Motherhood seems to enhance their beauty."

The Truth in Vino Is That It's the Life of This Party

By PETER EDSON

WASHINGTON (NEA)—Aldo Morante, the sleek, gray-haired and olive-skinned commercial counselor of the Italian Embassy, acted as official host for a wine-tasting "festa" here the other night. It was something new in Washington free-loading.

Over 300 guests were invited to don black tie and formal to come taste 22 different Italian wines—courtesy of the wine importers and wholesalers and the Fairview Hotel, which furnished the grand ballroom, waiters and Italian cheeses and breads the guests munched between sips to sharpen their taste buds.

In all honesty, it must be reported that fewer than 100 stayed for the full course, which ran from 9 p.m. to something after 3 a.m. Even Italy's Ambassador and Sigaora Brosio, who gave the party class, quit about midnight just as though they had tasted Italian wines before.

But in case you want to throw one of these parties in your own back yard, this is how it's done.

AS YOUR GUESTS arrive and while they're still standing serve them three vermouths—one after the other—a dry, a sweet and Punt E Mes, which has bitters and herbs in it.

Then the guests are seated at tables for the serious work of the evening. In the center of each table, big trays of cheeses and breads. Before each guest, four small wine glasses and a printed program. This told the order in which the wines would be served with a line of description about each. Sure. How else would you know what you were getting?

Waiters fill one glass about a third full. That way, one bottle serves about a dozen or a score and nobody gets a skunkful right off. And so on right down the list. For this Washington tasting, the fourth wine served was good old Soave. The program said it was rich, fruity, dry and fragrant. The guests who didn't read this took a taste and pronounced it delicate and a bit on the sweet side.

To keep them from making mistakes of this kind, Alvin Kerr, a New York expert, was brought down to give a commentary on every wine. He was heard politely while he said that wine tasted just as good if you were in overalls and drank from a peanut-butter glass. You didn't have to get all dressed up to like wine.

If you liked your Chianti chilled, put it in the icebox. The only rule was white wine before red, dry before sweet, light before heavy. Otherwise, drink what you like the way you like it. After this, nobody paid much attention to what Mr. Kerr said.

Meantime, waiters were supposed to be pouring wines number five and six—Verdicchio and Castelli di Canelli. Then glasses number one and two were supposed to be taken away, washed and brought back for wines number seven and eight, i.e. vettio and Lachrima Christi.

But along about midnight this system broke down. Either they ran out of glasses, or the dishwashing machine gave up, or the waiters decided enough was enough. To get wines number 16—(Valpolicella) to 22 (Barbaresco) it became necessary to use influence and an unwashed glass. Nobody minded.

A BEVY of glamor girls from Jerry Allen's key school of charm circulated around the tables to show the guests bottles from which they could read the labels. But if there was anything in the bottle, there seemed to be a demand for it. Guests explained they wanted the empties to take home and plant ivy in.

But a gay time was had by all, as you can read between the lines. An orchestra played Italian folk songs. Emelia Cundar of the Met sang solos and led group singing.

Next morning, there wasn't anything the matter that a few sips of water and half a bottle of headache pills couldn't fix. Best and most original party in Washington this year.

HARDY COW
GARBER, Okla. (P)—L. L. Long would like to see the would-be rustler who tangled with one of his cows.

Long found the cow, munching away, with a new 20-foot larval looped around her neck. Signs indicated the would-be thief had a rough time before giving up.

The female ichneumon flies drill holes into wood over the burrows of destructive insects, and lay their eggs where their young can feed on the borer. They are as much as 10 inches long. The name comes from a species of mongoose, that destroys harmful rodents as the flies destroy caterpillars and harmful insects.

Even though it is the bride who writes the thank-you notes for wedding gifts, the groom might want to write a few in addition to hers. It isn't necessary—but it would undoubtedly be appreciated.

Thinking It Over—

By Robert L. Dieffenbacher, D.D.

When we sit for a portrait we wonder what the picture will look like. We have seen ourselves in the mirror, but a portrait is different. The artist looks beyond the mere physical being. He catches some vistas from the soul and from the character of the subject.

Sometimes we wonder what an artist in Heaven would paint if he were to make a portrait of our souls bereft of human form. Would they be beautiful or gnarled? Would they be colorful, or would they be mere sketches of a skeletal framework?

Our souls could be more interesting than we have made them. They probably take on more color or as they are used to serve God and man.

They probably have the form of their surroundings. Their breadth must be determined by their contact with God and the setting in which they worship. Let us seek to add attractiveness to our souls.

Matter Of FACT

WASHINGTON (P)—President Eisenhower—former politician—was in a fortunate spot when he began his second term in January. Since it had to be his last, he had no worry about his political future.

This left him free to fight hard for his programs. He's been less than a zealous fighter in one case after another. The latest example is on federal aid for building new schools.

He has been plugging for federal aid to education since his first State of the Union message to Congress Feb. 2, 1953. In 1956 he sent Congress a special message calling for a program to be approved that year.

Shortly before the political conventions last summer, the House killed a federal aid bill. Eisenhower's own Republicans had a major share in its death. But a few weeks later the Republican platform called for an aid program this year.

In his State of the Union message to Congress Jan. 10, 1957, Eisenhower renewed his plea for money for school construction. He followed this up with a special message to Congress Jan. 28, detailing what he wanted.

Now comes the time to perform. The House where the Democrats outnumber the Republicans took up the school aid bill again Tuesday. This bill wasn't exactly what Eisenhower requested. It was a compromise bill.

He wanted $1,300,000,000 spent over four years in grants to the states. The House bill calls for spending 1 1/4 billions over five years. And he wanted more money for poorer states than the House bill provides. There were some other differences.

But this was a school aid bill and the only one that had a chance of passing. How good were its chances before it reached the House floor? Not bright. House Republican Leader Martin (Mass) expressed doubts it would pass.

This bill comes up at a time when the Eisenhower administration is trying to economize, although 21 national organizations asked Eisenhower to give "unqualified and publicly stated support" for the measure.

Arguments by those opposing the bill include economy, objections to putting the government in a new spending field, danger of federal control, and segregation. Eisenhower wasn't doing any two-faced fighting for the bill. And Tuesday, just before the House began considering it, Martin came away from the White House saying the President wasn't "entirely satisfied" with the bill as it is.

This was something less than "unqualified" support. The statement by Martin could not help the bill or its supporters in the House.

Later Tuesday, Eisenhower's press secretary, James Hagerty, issued a statement: He said Martin had correctly expressed Eisenhower's views but that the President would sign the bill if it passed.

Even if the House does pass it, the Senate is unlikely to act this year although it could do so in 1958.

There's no sign Eisenhower will make any special effort to get action this year, even from the House.

Earlier this year Eisenhower hemmed and hawed so much about his budget, and whether it could be cut, that Congress took his lack of fight for a signal to start chopping it to bits.

It did such a chopping job that Eisenhower finally had to take a stand by appealing in a nationwide broadcast against the meat-tax spree.

All year he had spoken repeatedly and confidently about his civil rights program as being a "moderate and decent" thing. It might have seemed, from the repetition, he knew exactly what was in the bill and backed it wholeheartedly.

But when the Southern Democrats began their attack on it in the Senate, Eisenhower seemed to have second thoughts and even said he was puzzled by some of the features in the bill.

This weakened chances of his civil rights bill right there and encouraged the Southerners to attack it some more. And they did. In short, Eisenhower's puzzlement on the bill, when the showdown came, weakened the position of the bill's supporters.

Not far from New England's Mt. Monadnock, we tasted the new pack of firm pink salmon from Puget Sound, the Columbia River and Alaska. Maurice LaFortune, chef of Toy Town Tavern in Winchendon, Mass., served it to us in the dining room overlooking the beautiful flower gardens.

He said more people have access to canned salmon, although the same recipe can be used for cold boiled salmon. LaFortune gave us his private recipe.

Toy Town Salmon
Drain 1 can of salmon, rinse dry and separate in flakes. Moisten with mayonnaise, arrange on a bed of lettuce and mask with mayonnaise. Garnish with canned pimiento cut in triangles, and slices of stuffed olives.

Ravigote Mayonnaise
Mix 2 tablespoons cooked spinach, 1 tablespoon capers, 1/2 sholot, finely chopped, 3 anchovies, 1 cup parsley, 1 cup watercress. Pound in a mortar until thoroughly macerated. Add to 1 cup mayonnaise.

LaFortune's Boston clam chowder is remarkable, too and perfect for hot-day meals followed by a cold plate or a fruit salad.

Repeated Nosebleeds

Require Examination

By EDWIN P. JORDAN, M.D.

Written for NEA Service

"Almost every day my two-year-old son has a nosebleed," writes Mrs. S. "This occurs either during his sleep or after he wakes up. He cries during sleep, but as soon as his nose bleeds he sleeps peacefully. What can cause this and what should be done?"

There are several possibilities for these recurrent nosebleeds and the situation should surely be investigated. Some nosebleeds of this kind appear to come frequently in delicate children. Some outgrow them after a period of months or years without active treatment.

However, I do believe that every youngster (or adult, either) who has frequent nosebleeds should be examined.

AFTER WRITING a column on nosebleeds several years ago, I received a letter from a medical colleague who has studied the subject extensively and feels that some of these recurrent nosebleeds are the result of hormone disturbance, largely of hereditary origin. These, he feels, can be corrected. It is, of course, possible that Mrs. S's son has this form of nosebleed.

Probably some of these nosebleeds come from small ulcers in the nose. Some youngsters pick or scratch the inside of the nose or place objects in it. This will usually lead to trouble.

THERE IS a family form of nosebleed which is sometimes found in several generations. This condition is caused by enlarged blood vessels in the nose which frequently rupture and result in nosebleeds at frequent intervals.

Certain blood diseases can cause nosebleeds. If the blood does not clot properly, bleeding is particularly likely to show up in various openings of the body, including the nose. In fact, nosebleed may be the first sign of some disease of the blood.

Nosebleeds often occur when a person moves to high altitudes. Other possible causes include violent exertion, acute infections and occasionally tuberculosis or chemical poisoning.

A SIMPLE nosebleed can usually be checked rapidly. Pressure on the upper lip, the application of cold to the back of the neck, and insertion of a little cotton into the nostril itself are methods normally used.

Rest in a position halfway between sitting and lying, accompanied by muscular relaxation, stops most nosebleeds rather rapidly. In severe cases it may be necessary to cauterize or pack the region around the blood vessels.

Even if the House does pass it, the Senate is unlikely to act this year although it could do so in 1958.

There's no sign Eisenhower will make any special effort to get action this year, even from the House.

Earlier this year Eisenhower hemmed and hawed so much about his budget, and whether it could be cut, that Congress took his lack of fight for a signal to start chopping it to bits.

Premier Bulganin of Russia, in his latest letter to Britain, has chosen a roundabout method of intervening in West German politics.

This sort of thing has been going on ever since the start of the German election campaign, and more can be expected before the Sept. 15 voting date.

Britain and West Germany are all wrong, Bulganin writes, in considering themselves bases for atomic war in Europe. He threatens that they will be wiped out if such a war comes.

He says they should get back to consideration of an inspection zone in Germany, where East and West would reduce and limit the size of forces which face each other.

He doesn't go into the rest of it, which would mean a freeze on German rearmament which is just getting well under way under Chancellor Adenauer's program of full German cooperation with the West.

Adenauer's Christian Democratic party faces a close election. The Social Democrats are threatening, and the outcome is likely to depend on how the vote is divided between a number of other parties. Estimates have been made that a big majority of the vote will go for these other parties.

If the Russians can, through spreading doubt about German rearmament and the wisdom of accepting atomic weapons, divert votes from the major parties, then a chaotic situation can be created in West Germany. It would be thrown wide open to Communist finagling.

50 Hurt In Blast During Try To Rescue Trucker

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (U.P.)—Hundreds of curious spectators watched for nearly an hour while rescuers tried to free an injured driver's helper from the battered cab of a trailer-truck Wednesday.

Then, at least 50 of them were burned as the truck's exploding gas tank showered them with flaming gasoline.

The injured onlookers fled. So did the rescuers, leaving the truck man dangling helplessly head downward from the cab window. All but his legs had been freed prior to the blast.

From a distance, a fireman played a hose on the trucker, Wilfred Godfrey, 35, of Hartford. Witnesses said this action probably saved his life.

The fire was extinguished in about a minute. Godfrey, who had been given an anesthetic earlier to ease his pain, was pulled from the wreckage three minutes later. He was suffering from extensive body burns and was reported in critical condition at a hospital.

Godfrey was trapped in the cab when the truck stopped short to avoid a dog. The truck's cargo, a smaller truck, snapped its bonds and rolled forward, bashing in the rear of the cab.

All but three of the fleeing bystanders were treated at hospitals for minor burns and injuries and released. The three, a 43-year-old man and two 16-year-old girls, were admitted with burns of the hands, arms and legs.

There'll Be Some Changes Made In 'Unlawful' Bridge

CIBOLA, Ariz. (U.P.)—There are going to be some changes made in that "unlawful" bridge which some Arizona farmers flung across the Colorado River.

Recovering from its surprise upon learning that the bridge is there, the Army Corps of Engineers cracked down on the builders today with this ultimatum: "The bridge will be modified to provide adequate vertical and horizontal clearance compatible with navigation interests or a section of the bridge will be removed pending such modification."

Indiana Governor Accuses Official Of Embezzlement

INDIANAPOLIS (U.P.)—Indiana officials were looking today for ways of tightening their auditing regulations, following Gov. Harold W. Handley's accusation Wednesday that an ousted state official had embezzled "thousands of dollars" in tax receipts.

Handley accused Frank J. Noll Jr. of Indianapolis, fired 11 days ago as administrator of the state income tax division, of taking money since 1934 by endorsing taxpayers' checks and depositing them in his personal accounts at two Indianapolis banks.

The state Board of Accounts is investigating the governor's charges, and the full amount of the alleged losses is not yet known.

Noll was appointed by former Gov. George N. Craig, Handley's Republican predecessor and a factional enemy in the GOP. He refused to comment on the governor's charges.

The governor's disclosure came on the heels of Tuesday's admission by a Hoosier county treasurer that he embezzled about $200,000 in county funds.

Handley immediately called for a special session of the state Board of Revenue today to see if steps can be taken to prevent embezzlements by closer audit of public accounts.

Fine Witness In Girard Case For Brawl With GI

MAEBASHI, Japan (U.P.)—A Japanese court today convicted and fined one of the key Japanese witnesses in the coming trial of Army Specialist 3.C. William S. Girard.

The Maebashi Summary Court found Hidetsugu Onozeki, 29-year-old farmer, guilty of slightly injuring Pfc. Wilbur R. Smith of Mount City, Mo., in a brawl June 9.

The Japanese was fined 10,000 yen ($27.78), about what he makes a month.

Girard is scheduled to go on trial Aug. 28 on a manslaughter charge growing out of the killing on a military firing range Jan. 30 of Mrs. Naka Sakai, who was collecting empty shell cases for scrap metal. Onozeki told police he saw Girard entice Mrs. Sakai onto the range before she was hit and killed by an empty cartridge case fired from Girard's grenade launcher.

Girard's attorneys are expected to cite Onozeki's conviction in an effort to discredit his testimony.

PAYS $2 FOR PLAIN AMERICAN PENNY

PHILADELPHIA (U.P.)—A plain American penny turned out to be worth two dollars to historic Christ Church here.

George Pepper Robins, lay assistant to the rector, says he was gathering up pennies from Benjamin Franklin's grave in the church's burial ground when a woman approached him.

She asked to buy one of the pennies and he offered an even exchange.

The lady insisted on paying two dollars for the coin.

It has become a custom to toss pennies on Franklin's grave because of his saying: "A penny saved is a penny earned."

TOPS IN TOPS—Looking like a gargantuan flying saucer, this giant plastic roof, the largest ever built, sprawls across the landscape in Manchester, N.H. The huge translucent roof, equal in area to three football fields, will cover the United States pavilion at the 1958 World's Fair in Brussels, Belgium. Constructed of 2,100 plastic panels, manufactured by the Kalwall Corporation, it is more than 340 feet in diameter and will span a 72,000-square-foot roof area. Two Suffer Heat Strokes In Jersey

JERSEYVILLE — Fred Moore of the East Alton vicinity suffered a heat stroke Sunday afternoon as he was walking along the shoulder of Route 100 in the Grafton vicinity.

Moore collapsed on the sunny side of the highway. Occupants of a car which came along after he slumped to the ground, moved him across the highway to the shade of a tree where they proceeded to administer cold packs to his head and neck.

State police officer Wayne Rowling was called to the scene and took Moore in the police car to the office of a physician in Grafton.

Milton Tietelbaum of Jerseyville suffered a heat stroke while operating his car on Route 67 A in the vicinity of the Plaza Hill Sunday afternoon.

Tietelbaum continued to drive his car until he arrived in Jerseyville where he wrecked the vehicle on a fire plug on North Harrison street. Tietelbaum requested residents of the vicinity to call the city police. Officers Dale Ogden and Kenneth Weller went to the accident scene and brought Tietelbaum to the radio station waiting room at the county jail pending further investigation of the situation.

Tietelbaum was later taken to the Jersey Community hospital where he was admitted as a patient. According to police, preliminary diagnosis of the man's indication was to the effect that he might have suffered a slight stroke brought on by the existing heat.

Temperatures in the Jersey county locality ranged as high as 102 degrees in the shade Sunday about 2 p.m. The previous high for the week in the locality as registered by some thermometers was 104.

Farmers reported Monday that corn in many places is "firing" as a result of the heat wave and lack of adequate surface moisture.

Northminster Society Sending Gifts To Missions

The Missionary Society of Northminster Presbyterian church held a regular meeting July 18 at the church with the vice president, Mrs. Percy Fernandes, in charge.

Mrs. Paul DeFrates led the devotional period using the subject, "The Living Christ, Our Health." During the business session the serving secretary, Miss Helen Martin, dedicated the serving that had been done for medical missions and which is ready to be sent to the various stations. She announced the group had voted to send stamped goods for extra giving and this will be received at the August meeting. The offering will consist of stamped scarves and pillow cases, embroidery needles and floss.

The program presented was on Medical Missions with Mrs. William Bieber in charge assisted by Mrs. Vivian Albright. They presented two different mission stations, a hospital in West Pakistan and flying doctor of the Congo.

Members were reminded election time is near and all recommendations for officers in the society should be made to the nominating committee, Mrs. Frank Bracewell, Mrs. Melvin Smith and Mrs. Harry Oliver.

The next meeting will be held at the church Aug. 15.

A. L. Lucas Of Roodhouse Marks 81st Birthday

ROODHOUSE — A. L. Lucas, who observed his 81st birthday anniversary on Monday, July 22, was pleasantly surprised during the weekend when his two sons and daughter from Ft. Wayne, Ind., arrived to make his a short visit.

Present were Mr. and Mrs. Dale Lucas and son, Mrs. Jim Chestnut and husband and Farley Lucas, all of Ft. Wayne. Among other presents received was a box containing 81 silver dollars from his three children.

Mr. Lucas, a retired mail carrier and veteran of the Spanish-American War, was a resident of Ft. Wayne before coming to Roodhouse to marry his childhood friend, Miss Cora Rawlins, over ten years ago. Mrs. Lucas is a retired school teacher.

Mr. Lucas received a number of gifts from friends who called at the home. He is active and well and is noted for his fine gardens each year.

ESCAPE WELL

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — A nearby Sparta farmer has solved a problem of a tornado shelter by pumping an old cistern dry and converting it into a safe underground place for tornado weather.

Lyle Anderson said the project didn't cost a cent. He pumped the cistern dry with a fruit spray rig and stocked it with drinking water, blankets, tins of food and personal records plus a transistor radio.

But in the propaganda field, any Kremlin claim to have repudiated

the dictator falls down. The bulk of this propaganda is made up of tested Stalin clichés, with no detectable difference in content or tactics. The dizzying old formula of attack and retreat, of simultaneous threat and blandishment, of alternating smiles and scowls, never has been abandoned.

The cornerstone of Soviet propaganda at home and abroad remains, as in Stalin's day, an insistence that only the U.S.S.R. stands for the prohibition of nuclear weapons and world peace. While Soviet negotiators give the impression of moving toward agreement on such portentous issues as disarmament, Soviet propaganda attacks American proposals as mere smokescreens for aggression, and American spokesmen as warmongers plotting war on the U.S.S.R.

In Stalin's time, the Communists were infuriated by things like the Truman Doctrine, the Marshall Plan and any other obstacle to bloodless Red aggression. Today's leaders are infuriated by the Eisenhower Doctrine for the Middle East, by schemes like the European atomic energy pool and the European Common Market, all of which might tend to block Red expansion.

In Stalin's later years, President Truman, Gen. George C. Marshall and Gen. Douglas MacArthur were the main devils of Soviet propaganda. Today the principal devils are Secretary of State Dulles, American generals and American industrial leaders.

President Eisenhower is not attacked personally. Often, his Middle East plan is dubbed the "Dulles-Eisenhower Doctrine."

The anti-American campaign internally, a hallmark of the Stalinist cold war, produces savage cartoons depicting American leaders as men with bloody hands plotting atomic war. The propaganda singles out men like Adm. Arthur Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff; Gen. Lauris Norstad, the NATO supreme commander in Europe, and Dulles as special targets for abuse.

They often are depicted to the Russians as puppets manipulating the strings of revived Nazism in Germany, with Gen. Hans Speidel, NATO's ground commander, as their tool. Often they are depicted as colonizers of the Middle East and Asia, meeting the angry resistance of the popular masses.

As in Stalin's day, the Russian people are told many times over that capitalism is doomed. Russians are told the American military leaders are bestial men who plot to use humans as guinea pigs. The public is warned frequently in cartoon and newspaper dispatch of American "spies, agents and saboteurs." It hears almost daily that the United States is a police state which cruelly suppresses minorities.

The Soviet people, longing for consumer goods which have been sacrificed to the military and political potential of heavy industry, are told they will surpass the United States soon economically. They were told exactly the same thing 10 years ago.

Externally, Moscow radio carries the word in many languages. Communist parties, Soviet embassies and field offices of VOKS (All-Union Society for Cultural Relations Abroad) elaborate the line according to local conditions.

WELL! WELL!

EL DORADO, Kan. (AP) — Geologist W. B. Sprague believes the comparatively short-lived No. 5 Shumway of Gypsy Oil Co. set a pretty good production record back in 1917.

Completed Sept. 7, it flowed at the date of 19,000 barrels daily for a time and produced an estimated 2½ million barrels of oil in 222 days before it quit flowing when a 17,000-barrel well was brought in some 650 feet away.

Stalin's Scowl Still Lurks Behind Khrushchev's Smile

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Foreign News Analyst

Nikita Khrushchev will have a tough time convincing the world Stalinism is dead, unless he changes the tune of Soviet propaganda.

The big test of Khrushchev's intentions, so far as the West is concerned, will be whether he can obliterate the ghostly scowl of Stalin which still lurks behind the Soviet new look.

A Khrushchev attempt to revive the 1955 "spirit of Geneva" can be expected. But it will have little effect upon Western statesmen so long as Soviet propaganda continues in its present vein.

At the time of the latest big Soviet purge, the Soviet press and radio had just about reached the height of a violent hate-America campaign which recalled the iciest days of the Stalinist cold war.

For the past year and a half, the echoes of Stalin's time have been so pronounced that one got the impression of a Kremlin hierarchy of divided and confused men who, even if they wanted to, did not dare abandon Stalinism in their domestic propaganda.

The collective leadership, based on a notion that a dictator's heirs can share power equally, now has been swept aside. The world will watch for the effects of this development on Soviet propaganda attitudes. As of now, the Kremlin's propaganda still has the harsh sound of Stalin's trumpets of hate.

The collective leadership added some touches of its own to Stalin's foundations for propaganda. Its frequent glad-handing tours abroad, its accessibility and willingness to be seen and quoted, stand out in sharp contrast to Stalin's secretiveness.

But in the propaganda field, any Kremlin claim to have repudiated

Navajo Tribal Council Meets To Discuss What Cash From New-Found Oil Buys

By JOHN RIDDICK
of the Tucson Citizen

WINDOW ROCK, Ariz. (AP)—This is a meeting of the Navajo tribal council. Every seat is occupied. Everyone is alert to the subject at hand—oil money and what it will buy.

Less than half the 74 members speak English. Half wear the long hair and clothes of the rural Navajo. To overcome the language barrier, a translator is present.

They are talking about the first returns from the new-found oil gushing up out of Navajo land.

Until now, money meant the prospects from a few uranium leases and, more visibly, the few sheep that grazed on sparse grass and gave the Indian his meager living.

It was only a few years ago that the Navajos were in such dire straits that private agencies collected food and blankets, and money for medicine to try to control tuberculosis. The tribe still isn't rich, by any means, but things look a good deal better.

The oil is bringing sudden changes to the Navajo reservation. Millions of dollars are being spent by the oil companies for pipelines, leases, drilling. The oil land lies on the corners of four states: Utah, New Mexico, Colorado and Arizona.

One oil company official called it "the hottest area in the country, with the possible exception of the Gulf Coast."

The tribal council will receive an estimated $15,000 a day in royalties from one pipeline alone. Three are planned now, including a 40-million-dollar line from Arizona to Los Angeles.

So far, the tribal council has received 33 million in oil bonus lease money. One of the first things that money buys, the Navajos discover, is problems.

The meeting goes like this: Dillon Latero of Kinist reports on the proposed budget items for some welfare and education needs. One item is $25,000 for eyeglasses.

A council member interrupts to say that "many children are going into town and getting one dollar glasses ruining their eyes."

Latero continues with an item for clothing: "We found that a lot of our children weren't going to school because of inadequate clothing. And so we made a contract with clothing businesses. We raised the amount by $100,000 last year to $500,000. This year it is the same."

Another member is recognized: "A lot of reports come to me that say these clothes are old. You put them in the washing machine once and they are gone."

"Look into this and buy good stuff for the children. That's what we want."

Another speaks: "I'm in favor of this. But some study should be made. I think we can save money. Take shoes. When a few stitches are broken, children stick their fingers in and tear them. Some type of shoe repair shops might be built at the schools."

Still another says, "The trouble lies in the school administration. They compete with each other to see who can give out the most."

And the discussion goes on. There is no doubt that the lot of the Navajo is improving under the influence of the oil money. But generally speaking the attitude of the Navajo is conservative. He's not off with a fat pocketbook to buy out the market.

So far 1,183,250 acres of tribal land have been leased to the oil companies. Individual Indians who have their own land on the reservation have leased another 92,186 acres, for which they have received $2,037,000.

Maurice Macabe, executive secretary of the council, calls 50 million dollars—which is probably roughly what the council has in the bank—an "awkward" amount.

"Spread over 80,000 people on a per capita basis, that would pay a few grocery bills and liquidate a few debts. Then we'd be back where we started."

The great oil companies are pouring their power into the Four Corners area, which they believe will become one of the major petroleum producers.

A thousand oil and gas wells will be drilled this year, estimates the U. S. Geological Survey. Shell alone plans to drill over 100.

The area compares with the earlier days in the development of the Permian Basin in Texas, says Edward Alsop, divisional manager of the El Paso Natural Gas Co. Today, the Permian Basin is one of the world's leading oil producers.

In a single land offering last fall, the oil companies paid the tribal council 27 million dollars in bonus money—the largest sum ever paid in an inland oil lease sale.

Three oil companies—Sun, Pure and Ohio—paid nearly eight million for the oil rights to 2,500 acres of land in the Utah part of the Navajo reservation.

It would be hard to exaggerate the potential effect that the discovery of oil holds for the Navajos.

Radical changes have been taking place among these Indians, who are gradually exchanging their sheep economy for off reservation work. Since 1953, the number of Navajo children in school has risen from 65 to 92.8 per cent.

On the other hand, the Indians don't believe they have enough money to wean themselves away from the support of the U. S. Bureau of Indian Affairs.

The council is feeling its way along with projects such as three million dollars for water development, a half million for clothing for schoolchildren, and other expenditures for industrial development.

"Our greatest needs are education and know-how," says Macabe. "Our greatest problem is to make people understand that although we have some money, we don't have a lot."

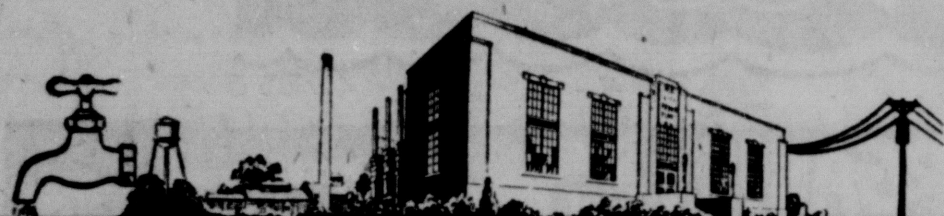

Old men think they will have a lot more.

SCOREBOARD

By JIMMY BRESLIN
NEA Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Yogi Berra leaned against a post in the Yankee dugout and ran his pudgy hands over a new chest protector. He wore a pair of unflattering glasses, which he says he'll use in games, and the statistics sheet showed his batting average was .236.

"This is a good protector," Yogi was saying. "The old one over there, it's got all that foam rubber in it. Makes you sweat a lot. Boy, that tires you out. This one here has no rubber in it." He put down the protector and went out on the field to warm up. He was, to the onlooker, the Berra who has smashed apart the American League for years—a thick-legged, gorilla-sized guy who moves with implausible speed and puts unhittable pitches six or seven rows back in the bleachers.

But the Berra who wears glasses and has a .236 average is different. He is a man who pops to left field because he doesn't get the bat around in time to pull and he talks of being tired and not having any zip in his arms.

Berra has others talking of him, too. To be blunt, more than a few people in baseball are asking if he's starting to come apart in his 11th year as a major league giant.

"They tell me," Manager Al Lopez of the White Sox comments, "that he's getting tired."

"We used to pitch to Mantle and walk Berra," says Coach Tony Cuccinello of the White Sox. "Or pitch him so far outside that if he did hit it, he'd single to left, not hit to right for two, three or four. Now we pitch to Yogi. That's why Mantle got all those walks. Looks to me like Berra just isn't snapping that bat around. You look it up, you see he's caught an awful lot of games. They used him 151 games a year, double-headers and all."

"That could do it to you. To swing a bat and snap those wrists and he'd hit the kind of pitches he did—throw one over his head and he'd hit it a mile—you have to be in perfect physical condition. Just get a little tired and there you are, no bat."

Berra talked about these things over his usual post-game can of beer in the dressing room.

"It's not the eyes," he said, "it's here . . . my arms. I can't get them around like I used to. I get them around, but I don't do it all the time. You know what they're getting me out on? Fast balls. Yeah, I always hit them good."

"I don't know, maybe it's just one of those bad years and I'll come back next year big. Maybe I need a good rest this winter."

For most of the season, Berra has batted behind Mickey Mantle and this highlights the kind of year he has had. For Mantle, now playing as if there never was another ballplayer, gets on base at a fantastic rate. But Yogi struggles along at a clip which is a full 30 runs-batted-in off his normal pace.

"My catcher," Casey Stengel tells you, "is starting to hit. He hit on the road. Hit one in Detroit pretty good. He will hit pretty good."

Maybe he will. It certainly figures this way. But Berra's remark, "Don't forget, I'm 32 now," and what now seems to have been a planned campaign for less work ("I shouldn't catch no more double-headers") provokes a question. How much have the workhorse years of the past taken out of Berra?

The Yankees sum it up best. "How's Berra?" one was saying. He rolled his head from side to side. "Once in awhile he hits it. But that ain't Yogi. I don't know what it is."

The man was wondering if one of the all-time great ballplayers behind a mask had definitely started downhill.

Like everybody else, he was hoping it was just one of those years.

Roberts Breaks 7-Game Losing Streak, Phils Down Milwaukee, 5-3

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Philadelphia's Robin Roberts broke a faltering string of seven straight losses and hurled his first victory since June 6 Thursday as the Phils beat the league-leading Milwaukee Braves 5-3.

Roberts, who improved his record for this disappointing season to 7-13 with the decision, needed help from Dick Farrell to get the last man out. He gave up nine hits in 8 2-3 innings.

One of them was Hank Aaron's 30th home run of the season, in the fourth inning, and was the 29th home run ball the great righthander served this season. Both marks are tops in the league this season.

Warren Spahn, lifted for a pinch hitter in the fifth, was the loser Thursday. His record now is 10-8.

The Phils jumped off to a lead in the third inning when Chuck Harmon singled Roy Smalley home. The Braves pulled even in the fourth on Aaron's homer. Mayo Smith's crew added two more runs in the fifth. Then Milwaukee pulled with one run in their half of the inning when Del Crandall singled, advanced on pinch hitter Carl Sawatski's single and scored on Red Schoendienst's single.

In the seventh, the Phils added a run off reliever Bob Trowbridge.

and added an insurance run in the top of the ninth.

Wes Covington tried to get Milwaukee back into the game in the last of the ninth when he tripled to the fence, then scored when Granny Hamner relayed the throw into the third base dugout. With two on and two out, Farrell took over for Roberts and got Del Rice to ground out.

Porterfield Goes The Route As Bosox Beat A's

BOSTON (AP)—Bob Porterfield elevated from his bullpen station, pitched Boston to a six-hit, 5-3 victory over Kansas City Thursday for his first complete performance in more than a year.

The veteran righthander, used mostly in relief this season, struck out four and walked only one in gaining his second triumph of the season. He has lost five.

JERRY AND WILLIE HOME TO PRACTICE FOR TAM O'SHANTER

By STAN SPOTTS

Willie (left) and Jerry Barber (right) landed in Jacksonville with their families Wednesday night and immediately lined up foursomes to practice Thursday afternoon at the Jacksonville Country Club in preparation for the Tam O'Shanter classic in Chicago next week.

Bob Shields, the fellow in the middle, also has something in common with the Barbers. He plays golf and he's going to take a crack at the Tam. Willie and Shields have to qualify for the All-American. Shields leaves Saturday and Willie departs Sunday for the qualifying rounds, which will include a field of about 300 golfers.

Jerry and Don Fairfield, who is the fourth local entry in the Tam, both automatically qualified by virtue of their 10th and 11th place finishes in the Tam O'Shanter's World Championship last year. Jerry is a former All-American titleholder, having won the championship in 1954.

The foursomes started out Thursday afternoon at the Country Club with Willie in the group with Jim Buckley, Bill Lynn and Judge Wright. Jerry played with Shields, Red Hohmann and Sam Pinson. The Barbers switched groups for the second nine holes. Willie shot an even par 35 on both rounds with Jerry taking a 37 on his first round and a 36 on the second nine. Following the 18-hole practice rounds, the golfing Barbers then practiced several hours.

Jerry's and Willie's families are visiting with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Barber of 1900 South Main. Jerry's family includes four children and Willie has three offspring.

When touring on the pro circuit, Jerry is the pro at the Wilshire Country Club in Los Angeles and Willie is the pro at the San Fernando Valley Country Club.

So far Jerry hasn't done too much this season on the play for pay circuit. As he stated during one of his practice rounds, "I'm experiencing one of my worst seasons in pro golf," but Jerry is expected to do better in the Tam's All-American, August 1-4, and the World Championship, August 8-11. Best of luck Jerry, Willie, Don and Bob.

Wehmeier, Cardinals End Newcombe's Jinx At Busch Stadium, 3-2

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals behind a six-hitter by leg-kicking Herm Wehmeier made it two straight over old nemesis Don Newcombe with a 3-2 victory over Brooklyn Thursday night, moving them past the Dodgers into second place a half game from the top.

The Red Birds pushed over the winning run in the last of the eighth. Alvin Dark opened with a single and reached third on Stan Musial's single.

Brooklyn manager Walter Alton then inserted his relief ace, Clem Labine, but Wally Moon sent a sacrifice fly to Sandy Amoros scoring Dark.

Wehmeier, staging a comeback, pitched his first complete game since opening day.

Newcombe had won 12 straight over St. Louis in a six-year period before losing to Sid Sam Jones and the Cards last week in Brooklyn.

Wehmeier's victory, his best effort in several weeks, evened his season mark at 4-4. Newcombe, a 27-game winner last year, now stands 9-8. He's 4-2 against St. Louis.

After the Dodgers reached him for two runs in the sixth, Wehmeier, a 30-year-old righthander Cincinnati native, clamped down to hold the Dodgers without a hit in the last three innings.

Patterson Plans To Carry Fight To Jackson

GREENWOOD LAKE, N. Y. (AP)—Heavyweight champion Flo Patterson hinted Thursday he plans to carry the fight to Tommy (Hurricane) Jackson in their title fight Monday night in the New York Polo Grounds.

Patterson told reporters he expected to do "more fighting" against the Hurricane than in their first match in June 8, 1956. When asked how long the fight would last, the 22-year-old champion replied, "I am going to try to win every round, but everything into every round. A couple of days ago I thought the fight would go the limit but the closer it gets, the less I think it will."

Dick Donovan Tosses Four-Hitter, Chisox Defeat New York, 6-2

NEW YORK (AP)—Dick Donovan pitched a four-hitter and hit a four-bagger as the Chicago White Sox captured the rubber of the three-game series from New York 6-2 Thursday to narrow the Yankees' first-place margin to 3 1/2 games.

The 29-year-old righthander retired the last nine batters after the Yankees had ganged up on him for their two runs in the seventh and recorded his 10th triumph against three losses.

The battling White Sox, who came back to win the next two games after losing the opener of this vital series, collected eight hits, seven of them against Bobby Shantz, who suffered his third defeat of the season.

Donovan had a one-hitter going into the seventh inning. But a triple by Mickey Mantle and singles by Harry Simpson and Hank Bauer, sandwiched around a walk to Yogi Berra, gave the Yankees two runs.

Rookie outfielder Jim Landis ignited the first two run-scoring sessions for the White Sox. After a scoreless three innings, he singled in the fourth, came around to third on a single by Walt Dropo and crossed the plate when Jerry Coleman fumbled Luis Aparicio's slow hopper to third.

In the sixth, Landis again singled, raced to third on Larry Doby's double and scored on Dropo's sacrifice fly. Aparicio's infield hit sent Doby home to give the White Sox a 3-0 lead. Donovan's home run, into the rightfield stands, made it 4-0 in the top of the seventh.

Chicago got its last two runs in the ninth. A walk to Aparicio, a passed ball and an error by reliever Art Dittmar on Sam Esposito's sacrifice bunt put Sox runners on first and third with nobody out. Earl Torgeson, batting for Earl Barette, doubled Aparicio home and Esposito scored on Nellie Fox's sacrifice fly.

Bell Cites Elvis, Beer Commercials As TV Precedents

By WHITNEY SHOEMAKER
WASHINGTON (AP)—Pro football Commissioner Bert Bell cited beer commercials and Elvis Presley Thursday as precedents for regulating what's shown on telecasts of football games.

Bell, as commissioner of the National Football League, must give prior approval to sportscasters assigned to radio or television for NFL games.

He has cautioned announcers and cameramen against picking up fights that break out on the field, oversteering injuries or second-guessing officials.

The subject came up as Bell testified before the House Antitrust subcommittee in its inquiry into Chairman Celler (D-N.Y.) and Rep. Rodino (D-N.Y.) suggested the commissioner's radio-TV authority amounted to censorship.

"You can play God, as it were," Celler commented. "You are too good."

Bell said he acted only to "protect the game."

A former player and coach, Bell said he was against one night recently to see TV cameras trained on a baseball player lying injured on the ground.

"His mother, father, sweethearts and friends at home were dying looking at that," the commissioner said. "If such incidents weren't really 'part of the whole spectacle' and fair game for the camera."

"Well, they left it off beer," Bell said.

"They pour beer," noted Rep. Keating (R-N.Y.).

"Yes, but they don't drink it," Bell said.

"They sip it," Rodino put in. "They don't drink it," Bell insisted.

Then the commissioner testified someone decided "that Mr. Presley wasn't in the best interest of the public for kids looking in and they raised the camera on that, too."

GRAIN FUTURES WEAKEN UNDER PROFIT TAKING

CHICAGO (U)—Grain futures, generally firm at the start of trading on the Board of Trade Thursday, weakened under profit taking and stop-loss selling to close lower for the fourth consecutive session.

Soybeans led the downturn, closing as much as 5 cents lower after starting the session with gains up to 2 1/2 cents a bushel. The early advance attracted profit taking in beans and later on this became general in most other grains.

New crop wheat closed 1/4 to 1/4 lower, corn 1/4 lower to 1/4 higher, oats 1/4 to 1/4 lower, rye 1 lower to 1/4 higher, soybeans 4 1/4 to 5 lower and lard 7 to 12 cents a hundred pounds lower.

The early advance in soybeans was attributed to a government report which showed bean stocks in all positions as of July 1 as somewhat lower than expected. Some traders regarded this as moderately bullish.

Wheat declined mainly because of little demand.

Favorable growing weather continued to be a weakening factor in the price of most grains.

Japan purchased 260,000 bushels of U.S. soybeans for shipment during September.

ST. LOUIS (U)—The granddaughter of the man who owned Dred Scott, slave who figured in a controversial U. S. Supreme Court decision before the Civil War, had a granite marker placed on Scott's grave here Wednesday.

It is the first time the grave has been officially marked.

There will be a ceremony at the grave Sept. 17, the 89th anniversary of Scott's death.

Runaway Car Zips Passenger Blown Down Main Street; Occupant Killed

STILLWATER, Minn. (U)—A runaway car zoomed 10 blocks down a hill Thursday at speeds up to 70 miles per hour, shot through the busy Stillwater Main street and crashed into a concrete bandstand. One occupant of the car was killed and the other was injured seriously.

Mrs. Lucy Cote, New Richmond, Wis., died as the car rammed the bandstand, in Lowell Park. Her daughter, Irene, 21, the driver, suffered chest injuries and shock.

Police Chief Raymond Law said brake failure caused the accident. No pedestrians or other cars were hit and Law said this likely was because the runaway machine had a green light as it raced through the Main street intersection.

Two policemen from Minneapolis and St. Paul were in a squad car on Myrtle street when the car flashed past. To warn others who might be in the street, the officers turned on their sirens and followed the runaway machine down the street hill.

Airport employees at Las Vegas said Binstock apparently did not leave the airport during his stay. At midnight he walked up to the Western Airlines counter, tossed his unused coupon book at a ticket agent and said: "Here, maybe you can use these."

Almost immediately after the plane took off, Binstock went to the washroom. He stayed so long that one passenger said he was about to notify the stewardess when the plane lurched sharply.

Hole 7 By 4'
The hole in the plane was 7 feet high and 4 feet wide. It represented almost the entire wall of the wash room. What appeared to be four bullet holes were along the ripped edge of the fuselage.

A Western Airlines source said that a break in the fuselage of a plane with a pressurized cabin at high altitude would cause the air inside to rush out with explosive force capable of ripping a section of the fuselage away.

Binstock's wife said she had not known he had gone to Las Vegas until he telephoned her from there at 8 p.m.

"He shouldn't have been on any plane," she cried.

IT'S A BIG COUNTRY

Sports Trail

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK (U)—If, or when the New York Giants are torn up by the roots from the Polo Grounds and transplanted in some western city, the biggest tug will be at the heartstrings of Edward Thomas Joseph Brannick.

Not that Eddie wouldn't go along with the franchise if he is so desired.

"It's just that the club's secretary and good-will man, who celebrated his 65th birthday this week, is a New Yorker by birth and a Giant by practically lifelong association.

For 52 of his 65 years he has been connected with the club, joining the organization as a scrawny little office boy for Owner John T. Brush back in 1906 and by his loyalty, eagerness, and his outgoing personality advancing to his present official capacity.

The Polo Grounds have been his second home since those days when he swallowed his disappointment at not being big enough to play third base for the club and set about making himself an invaluable addition to the front office.

His idol always has been and always will be John J. McGraw, to whom he refers reverently as "Mr. McGraw." To Brannick's mind there never has been another manager as capable, astute and ruggedly honest as the hard-bitten little Napoleon whose name forever shall be linked with the glory days of the New York club.

The Giants are contemplating moving now because of apathy on the part of the fans. There was no apathy in those early days.

In fact, the interest was so frenzied that when the club made an important western trip in the heat of a pennant fight a huge board was set up to follow the progress of the games, and the rabid followers willingly paid $3 cents a head to watch it. Eddie's nimble finger were among those moving the synthetic players about the miniature diamond.

As a host he is without peer. A non-drinker himself, he'll sit around drinking coffee by the gallon and his effervescent spirits keep pace with his companions who might be imbibing hard stuff in quantity.

He lives and dies with the Giants. A bad season finds him morose, but never unpleasant. When the club is having a fine year he fairly bubbles.

Wherever the club might move, Eddie will take along his own franchise—a franchise on good will.

Grange Defends Player Draft Before Congress

WASHINGTON (U)—Professional football's player and draft and reserve clause systems were defended at a congressional hearing Thursday by a group of gridiron notables.

Red Grange, the "Galloping Ghost" of three decades ago, told the House Antitrust subcommittee that "the only reason we have for football today as we know it is because of the draft."

George Connor, former Notre Dame and Chicago Bears tackle and now an assistant Bears coach, testified the draft "would be a good thing" for baseball, too.

Sid Luckman, ex-Columbia and Bears quarterback and now a club vice president and Midwest business executive, called the draft "vitally important" to clubs seeking new talent.

Grange, now 53 and only 5 pounds over his last 185-pound playing weight, said he testified with the experience of one who "lost $100,000 and went broke in two years."

The famous Illinois and Bears halfback said he dropped the money as part owner of the New York Yankees in the long-since disbanded American League in the mid 20s.

"We spent money and won all our games," Grange said. But the league "wasn't balanced right" so the fans lost interest and it flopped.

Grange said the draft guards against such imbalance.

The draft is the system under which National Football League clubs gain exclusive bargaining rights to selected graduating college stars. After each season they make their choices in reverse order to their standing in the league, this continues for 30 rounds.

"Critics contend the system deprives a player of his right of free choice, Grange, Connor, Luckman and other proponents argue it equalizes team strength, enabling the weaker clubs to improve themselves, and thus gives zest to the game.

Thursday's witnesses at the subcommittee hearings on the legal status of football and other professional team sports also defended the reserve clause, which gives each club a second-year option on a player with every contract he signs.

The first earth satellite may say up for nine years, predicts Dr. Theodore E. Sterne of the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory.

Critics President
During closing debate, Rep. McGovern (D-S.D.) has criticized the President on the same grounds of shoplifters.

Prof. Fred Inbau of Northwestern University, Evanston, Wednesday told a shoplifting clinic of the Illinois Retail Merchants Assn. that the new law gives them protection against false arrest charges.

Under the new law, a person suspected of shoplifting may be detained by a merchant or a clerk "for a reasonable length of time" and be asked to prove purchase of merchandise.

Merchants cannot search a person suspected of shoplifting, however, Inbau said.

Because of this, Inbau said, the new law "doesn't help against persons with goods hidden in concealed pockets and other shoplifting gimmicks."

Quarantine To Halt Bean Cyst Spread To Open

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—The U.S. Department of Agriculture has announced a quarantine, effective Friday, in an effort to prevent spread of the soybean cyst nematode from eight counties in Tennessee, North Carolina and Missouri.

The quarantine will cover infested fields in Dyer, Lake, Lauderdale and Obion counties in Tennessee; New Hanover and Pender counties in North Carolina; and Pemiscot and New Madrid counties in Missouri.

Quarantine regulations provide that any person who moves soil, manure, hay, grain, seed, cotton, used farm tools, machinery and vehicles.

Provisions would be made for allowing movement of most of the regulated products and articles after inspection or treatment.

The cyst nematode, capable of destroying entire soybean crops, was confined to the Orient until two years ago when it was found in North Carolina.

The cyst nematode is particularly dangerous because no economically practical method of control has been developed. State and federal officials are trying to develop such a method.

Ohio Firm Names Janet Conlee To New Position

Appointment of Miss Janet Ann Conlee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Conlee, 825 West Douglas avenue, as home service adviser for the Ohio Fuel Gas Company in Alliance was announced Thursday by J. W. Porter, Alliance division manager for Ohio Fuel.

The flower bearers were Mrs. Annie Mae Bruner, Mrs. Lulu Mae Glover, Mrs. Horace Gansaway, Mrs. Daisy Buckner, Mrs. P. H. Gilmore, Miss Mary Margaret Fisher and Miss Lottie Sue Taylor.

The obituary and condolences were given by Mrs. P. H. Gilmore.

Pallbearers were Ralph Bruner, Herbert Bruner, Thomas Buckner, John Pethy, Anderson Allen, Wilbert Glover and Charles Cropp.

Burial was in the New Richmond cemetery.

Over 150 friends and relatives filled the church to pay their last respects, and a large crowd remained standing outside the church.

Police reported Thursday evening that they are holding Benjamin Montemayor, 20, of rural route 1, box 252, Donna, Texas, pending an investigation into an attempted armed robbery of Gene's Sporting Goods.

According to reports the police received a call at 4:24 p.m. Thursday asking them to come to Gene's Sporting Goods store, 211 South Sandy St., immediately.

When police arrived within a few minutes they found the subject being held at gun point by Mr. Rickert while Mr. Rickert was holding an iron rod over his head.

Rickert said that he had come into the store and acted like he wanted to buy a 22 caliber revolver.

Unknown to the owners he placed two shells in the gun and then attempted to hold up the store.

However, Rickert was able to procure another gun, and the suspect quickly surrendered.

Montemayor has lived most of his life in Texas. He came to Jacksonville in a truck which he told police he had stolen in Morrison, Ill.

After the meal, the Lions were guests of Joliet Municipal airport and were given free airplane rides.

Five of the Lions landed the end of their ride in a plane piloted by Watcha McCollum, 34, of Danville, when it became clear this was no ordinary flight.

The control tower radioed McCollum that his left landing gear was not locked in place. The pilot tried unsuccessfully to manipulate the balky mechanism.

But the landing gear wouldn't cooperate, so McCollum circled the twin-engine Beechcraft for about an hour to burn up the gas supply.

One passenger, William Watson, head of community relations at the Caterpillar Tractor Co. plant in Joliet, said "none of them said anything until the last pass when I turned to the rest and said, 'Well, good luck.'"

McCollum made a perfect landing while a tense police and fire department rescue squad watched.

The pilot said the passengers were all very good during the hair-raising flight but that he was "all shook up."

Besides Watson, the passengers were Verne Cracker, Will County school superintendent; Morris Liberman, a retired merchant; Walter Zenko, Joliet hotel manager; and John Belom, an attorney.

CLOSED CIRCUIT BROADWAY

NEW YORK (AP)—Closed circuit television is again trying to interest Broadway producers in making current hits available for out-of-town electronic viewing.

The plan to display shows in full color has been demonstrated to such leading impresarios as Kermit Bloomgarden, Herman Shumlin, Gilbert Miller, David Merrick and Robert Whitehead. Some producers see such a project as a way of underwriting much of the initial cost of getting plays to the White Way.

The FCC, which has long delayed suggestions for pay-as-you-see television shows, would not be involved because the dramas would be distributed on wire networks.

Prize-Winners To Come Here

Karen Van Tuyle of Roodhouse is 10 years old now. She belongs to the Town & Country 4-H club led by Emmert Johnisse and showed her first project, some Cheviot sheep, at the Greene county fair last week. She got pretty excited when the judge awarded her four blue ribbons in as many classes: senior ewe, junior ewe, fat lamb and pen of three fat lambs.

Now she's coming up to the Morgan County Junior Fair, which opens the last day of July and runs through Aug. 4.

District Ten Employs New Shop Teacher

PITTSFIELD — The Board of Education of the Pittsfield Community School District No. 10 has announced the appointment of Mr. Walter Pippin of Vandalla, Ill., as teacher of General Shop succeeding Carl York who has held the position in the schools the past two years.

Mr. Pippin is reported to be well trained in the field of Industrial Arts having completed 80 semester hours of the 120 required for a degree in the fields of metal working, wood working, mechanical drawing, art, architectural drawing and printing.

He will receive his Bachelor of Education degree from Eastern Illinois State College at Charleston on Friday, August 2. Soon thereafter he and his wife and young child will come to Pittsfield to assume the duties of his position here which will include three weeks work in the shop to get in readiness for the opening of school in September.

The appointment of Mr. Pippin completes the Pittsfield Community high school staff of teachers. Only three vacancies exist at this time in the entire district, a teacher of fourth grade in the elementary schools of Pittsfield to succeed Mrs. John Borrowman, an elementary school supervising principal in Pittsfield to succeed Wayne Willard and a band and vocal teacher in the East Pike high school at Milton.

Loren McFadden, principal of the Rockport schools, who had resigned the position with plans to retire from the teaching profession, has reconsidered and will serve another year in Rockport.

U. S. Has New Army Division Ready To Move Into Nuclear War On Four Hours Notice

By BEM PRICE
FT. CAMPBELL, Ky. (AP) — For the first time since the dawn of atomic warfare, the United States has a revolutionary new army division — fully trained and able to move into a nuclear war on four hours' notice.

In organization and battle tactics, the new pentomic army will be almost totally unrecognizable to Army veterans.

Although there is only one division trained now—the 101st Airborne—the Army plans to have all divisions converted to the new command and combat doctrine within two years. It has already begun with the 82nd Airborne at Ft. Bragg, N. C.

The 101st is a five-sided division of paratroopers, packing its own atomic punch. That's where the name pentomic comes from: "pent" for Pentagon, or five-sided which is where the Defense Department headquarters also gets its name: "omic" from atomic.

Gone are the battalions and regiments of previous years. In their place is a new unit called the battle group. Five battle groups make up the division; each battle group has five companies. The same general outline will apply eventually to all divisions, airborne, infantry or armored.

The 101st, famed as the "Screaming Eagles" of World War II, was reactivated last September. It is totally transportable by air, ready to begin moving anywhere on the globe within four hours—assuming planes are available.

It will carry four Honest John rocket launchers, and rockets with atomic warheads. The payload of an Honest John is reported to be about 2,000 tons of TNT, or an atomic warhead with a destructive capacity of between 10,000 and 30,000 tons of TNT.

In the 101st, the Army has designed a division which looks forward to the end of the air age and the beginning of the missile age.

Implicit in this is the employment of atomic weapons, missiles—destroying rockets and the use of launching sites as far as 1,500 miles away from target. These missiles would be used as long-range artillery and tactical aircraft.

Some of these weapons are still dreams on the drafting boards. Some, like the 1,500 mile Jupiter, exist but are not perfected.

The new battle groups call for distribution of 1,500 to 1,700 man formations over an area 30 to 35 miles in diameter. Two major combat techniques have evolved with this development:

1. Since wide dispersion invites enemy infiltration, the Army has a family of atomic warhead missiles of varied power which can be used relatively close to our own troops.

2. The Army has developed the air burst technique for its atomic shells and missiles. This minimizes the radioactivity in a blast area, permitting our own troops to move into the area. Scientists are working on perfect atomic weapons with even less radioactive residue—the much discussed "clean" bombs.

Right now the 101st is capable of fighting three types of wars: The so-called brush-fire war of limited aggression, using conventional weapons as Indochina and Korea.

The limited war, calling for atomic weapons only in and around the battlefields.

The all-out war in which everything goes, including the hydrogen bomb.

The man who put the 101st together with the aid of a couple of brigadier generals and several bright young colonels is Maj. Gen. Thomas L. Sherburne. He believes that the era of airborne attack employed parachute troops may last another 10 years or so.

In an interview, he said that he could foresee a not-so-distant day when troops involved in the Middle East could call for supporting fire from missile launching sites in, say England.

By eliminating assorted headquarters, supply and special troops, and shortening the chain of command, this new division manages to reduce over-all manpower but puts more men on the firing line.

The current infantry division contains 17,460 men. The new type 13,748. Yet the latter contains 450 more riflemen.

Despite the availability of small rockets, artillery still remains the weapon used against targets where pinpoint accuracy is necessary. If the 101st went into battle it would carry with it five batteries of 105-millimeter howitzers of five pieces each—the only five-gun batteries in the Army today. Four is normal. Battle groups would always be close enough to support each other.

Because the essence of the 101st is mobility and flexibility, in and out by air, hit hard and hit fast, the division has no tanks and few trucks.

Fundamentally the tactics to be used by the new divisions are a combination of the "perimeter" defense always used by airborne troops and dispersion to meet the atomic threat.

The theory behind this is to force the enemy to concentrate his forces if he is going to knock out any one of the dispersed battle groups.

Presumably this concentration on the part of the enemy would set him up as a favorable target for an atomic missile.

So much for theory. Here is the 101st, which probably is the Army's only truly combat ready division.

It is capable of moving within four hours—a fact which is demonstrated over and over again in practice drills.

Since it was reactivated last September the 101st has acted precisely as if war were going to break out tomorrow.

As Col. John S. Lekson, chief of personnel and administration, puts it: "We are trying to put the division in a state of constant readiness—365 days a year."

The battle groups within the division take turns at standing by on the alert. When a preliminary alert is sounded for a battle group all men wake up to barracks.

Lekson is now in the process of setting up a warden system whereby military and local police in nearby Clarksville, Tenn., and Hopkinsville, Ky., can start rounding up off-post parachutists any hour of the day or night.

The 101st is equipped with airborne television and radar to keep tabs on the enemy, including infrared ray equipment to spot troop concentrations at night.

Further, it has a ground radar unit, easily carried by two men, which guards against enemy surprise attack.

On the basis of one airplane taking off from one airport every 15 minutes, Forsythe figures the head and tail of his column would be separated by 18 hours.

This brings up a sore point: air-lift. The Army wants the Troop Carrier Command planes of the Air Force ready for immediate use.

In this way, the Army contends, more than one airfield could be used and the time for transporting the battle groups shortened considerably.

The Army men here advance the argument: What good is it for us to be ready, if the Air Force's troop planes are scattered all over the world hauling supplies and spare parts for Air Force operations?

In Forsythe's words, the 101st is a fire brigade without fire engines.

Even without the engines, though, Forsythe and his men go through an almost constant fire drill.

troops to move into the area. Scientists are working on perfect atomic weapons with even less radioactive residue—the much discussed "clean" bombs.

Right now the 101st is capable of fighting three types of wars: The so-called brush-fire war of limited aggression, using conventional weapons as Indochina and Korea.

The limited war, calling for atomic weapons only in and around the battlefields.

The all-out war in which everything goes, including the hydrogen bomb.

The man who put the 101st together with the aid of a couple of brigadier generals and several bright young colonels is Maj. Gen. Thomas L. Sherburne. He believes that the era of airborne attack employed parachute troops may last another 10 years or so.

In an interview, he said that he could foresee a not-so-distant day when troops involved in the Middle East could call for supporting fire from missile launching sites in, say England.

By eliminating assorted headquarters, supply and special troops, and shortening the chain of command, this new division manages to reduce over-all manpower but puts more men on the firing line.

The current infantry division contains 17,460 men. The new type 13,748. Yet the latter contains 450 more riflemen.

Despite the availability of small rockets, artillery still remains the weapon used against targets where pinpoint accuracy is necessary. If the 101st went into battle it would carry with it five batteries of 105-millimeter howitzers of five pieces each—the only five-gun batteries in the Army today. Four is normal. Battle groups would always be close enough to support each other.

Because the essence of the 101st is mobility and flexibility, in and out by air, hit hard and hit fast, the division has no tanks and few trucks.

Fundamentally the tactics to be used by the new divisions are a combination of the "perimeter" defense always used by airborne troops and dispersion to meet the atomic threat.

The theory behind this is to force the enemy to concentrate his forces if he is going to knock out any one of the dispersed battle groups.

Presumably this concentration on the part of the enemy would set him up as a favorable target for an atomic missile.

So much for theory. Here is the 101st, which probably is the Army's only truly combat ready division.

It is capable of moving within four hours—a fact which is demonstrated over and over again in practice drills.

Since it was reactivated last September the 101st has acted precisely as if war were going to break out tomorrow.

As Col. John S. Lekson, chief of personnel and administration, puts it: "We are trying to put the division in a state of constant readiness—365 days a year."

The battle groups within the division take turns at standing by on the alert. When a preliminary alert is sounded for a battle group all men wake up to barracks.

Lekson is now in the process of setting up a warden system whereby military and local police in nearby Clarksville, Tenn., and Hopkinsville, Ky., can start rounding up off-post parachutists any hour of the day or night.

The 101st is equipped with airborne television and radar to keep tabs on the enemy, including infrared ray equipment to spot troop concentrations at night.

Further, it has a ground radar unit, easily carried by two men, which guards against enemy surprise attack.

On the basis of one airplane taking off from one airport every 15 minutes, Forsythe figures the head and tail of his column would be separated by 18 hours.

This brings up a sore point: air-lift. The Army wants the Troop Carrier Command planes of the Air Force ready for immediate use.

In this way, the Army contends, more than one airfield could be used and the time for transporting the battle groups shortened considerably.

The Army men here advance the argument: What good is it for us to be ready, if the Air Force's troop planes are scattered all over the world hauling supplies and spare parts for Air Force operations?

In Forsythe's words, the 101st is a fire brigade without fire engines.

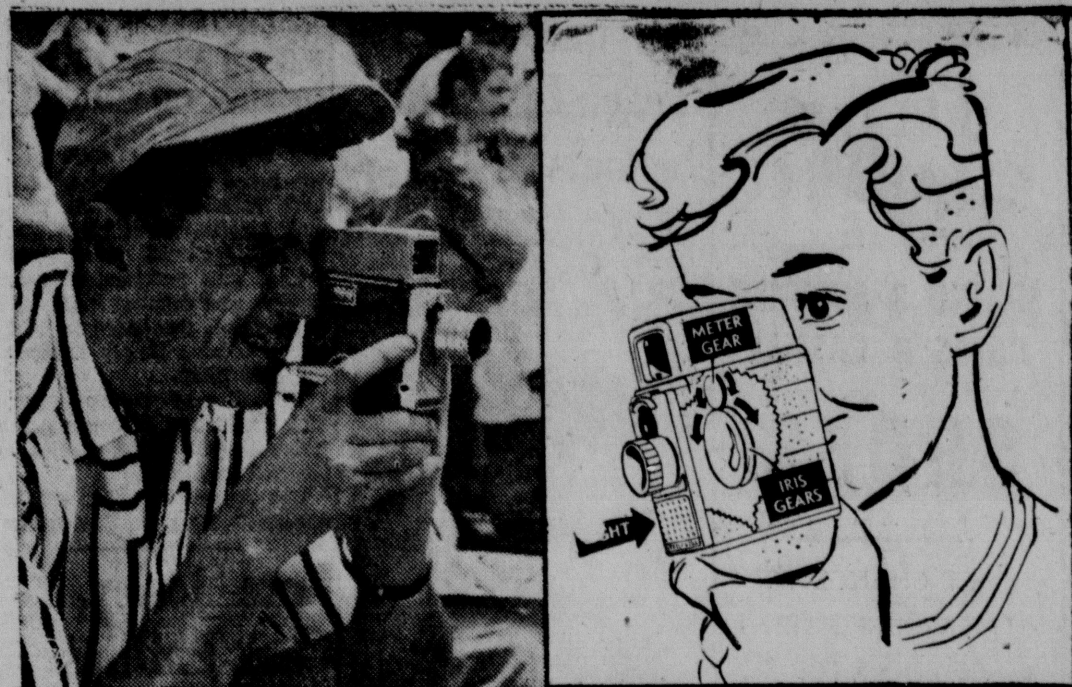

Even without the engines, though, Forsythe and his men go through an almost constant fire drill.

4-H Club Activities

MEREDOSIA — The Merry Doshans 4-H Club held its last regular meeting of the summer Monday afternoon at the high school. Final details of attending the annual Achievement Days in Jacksonville were talked about. The members planned a swimming party and wiener roast at Nichols Park for the afternoon of August 21.

Special meetings will be held after school starts to prepare a radio program for October 12.

The leader, Mrs. W. G. Steinberg, showed how to sew in a placket-type zipper, and then served grape juice and doughnuts.

FOOLPROOF PHOTOGRAPHY — The energy of light itself—solar or artificial—has been tapped to provide home moviemakers with correctly exposed film. The Bell & Howell Company has a new, 8-mm camera with a built-in electric eye that "reads" the light and automatically sets the lens opening for correct exposure. Man at left photographs a baseball game. His only job is to start the camera in motion. Sketch at right shows how the exposure control works. Light entering the photoelectric cell (bottom of camera) sets up a flow of electric current. The current flows through the meter coil, moving a gear mechanism that controls the iris gears. This opens or closes the iris aperture to permit exactly the right amount of light to reach the movie film. The exposure control operates instantaneously and continuously, with no attention from the photographer, even though the light changes while the camera is running. When there is not enough light to make good pictures, a beacon in the viewfinder warns the photographer to stop shooting.

Cass Achievement Day For 4-H To Be Held Aug. 1

VIRGINIA — Home Economics 4-H'ers will be interested to know the County Achievement Day will be August 1 at the Virginia high school gym. All entries are to be in place so judging can start promptly at 9:30.

Mrs. Minnah Fanning, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Russell Fanning and daughter of Moline, left Sunday for California for a visit with relatives.

DIRECT APPROACH WINS

NEW YORK (AP) — The direct approach won Producer David Merrick the eagerly sought Broadway rights to Peter Ustinov's London comedy hit "Romanoff and Juliet."

Ustinov, arriving here to star in the Gotham production due in the fall, recalled how Merrick just walked into his dressing room during the tryout tour, handed him a business card and explained he wanted the overcast rights. Merrick, producer of "Fanny" and "The Matchmaker," said he would wait at a hotel until Ustinov had time to check up on him.

Completely disarmed, Ustinov instead asked Merrick to stay to supper and closed the deal then and there.

Mrs. W. Uhnken Delegate To Church League

Mrs. Walter Uhnken of Chapin has been chosen to be a delegate to the international Lutheran Women's Missionary League biennial convention to be held at the Hotel Leamington, Minneapolis, Minn., on July 31 and August 1.

Mrs. Uhnken, a member of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Marvin Matzke, pastor, will represent the women's organization of the churches of this area belonging to the Lutheran Church—Missouri Synod.

The convention speakers will be the Rev. and Mrs. James Mayer, missionaries on leave from India. Also coming to the United States in time for the convention will be Dr. W. F. Bulle, in charge of medical mission work at Bethesda Hospital, Ambur, India. The delegates will hear Dr. John Behnken, president of the Lutheran Church—Missouri Synod, give an account of his record world-wide survey of mission fields.

The Lutheran Women's Missionary League is international in scope, comprising thirty-nine districts, each of which has its own projects. The only source of income is through the members' mite boxes.

Assisting the Church in its international mission endeavors, the LWML has in its many projects built missionary retreats in foreign fields; chapels in Chinatown, New York; Little Mexico, Los Angeles; hospitals in Nigeria, Africa and Ambur, India. Among other projects completed in the United States was a contribution of $60,000 toward the erection of a new deaconess chapter house at Valparaiso University, Valparaiso, Indiana.

CHAPIN NEWS NOTES

CHAPIN—Mr. and Mrs. Robert Munn are visiting her mother, Mrs. Gustav Onken here. They returned from Japan last week where Mr. Munn has served as field director for the American Red Cross for 30 months. After spending his annual leave time visiting relatives and friends Mr. Munn will go to a new assignment in the midwestern area.

Mr. and Mrs. David Munn, Hamilton, Ohio, will spend this weekend in Chapin with his parents and grandmother.

FULL SERVICE

MEMPHIS (AP)—A burglar stole several watches from a Memphis store recently. The next day, store owner David I. Cohen put this sign in his front window: "Dear Thief: The watches you stole are guaranteed for one year. If you have any trouble with them, bring them back."

THE MILKY WAY—Elizabeth Green, 12, has no trouble at all getting her pet "cat" to drink his milk. "Caesar," a 140-pound tamed cheetah from Tanganyika, laps up the milk at high speed in the girl's Fairlee, Vt., home. Elizabeth's father, big game hunter Bill Green, plans to have "Caesar" perform at his rare bird and animal farm in Fairlee. Cheetahs are supposed to be the world's fastest animals and "Caesar" has proven it. He's been clocked at 72.3 miles per hour.

PAINFUL EXPERIENCE
OREGON CITY, Ore. (P)—A milk-drinking caretaker whose ulcers got to hurting tipped off police to one of the biggest whiskey distilling operations in Oregon since prohibition days.

Everett W. Kruckman, 57, was unhappy when he was left at a mountain cabin for days without milk to soothe his ulcers. So he told a passing policeman about the 228-gallon stainless steel still in a nearby shed.

Police waited until John Everett Lee, 50, and George Ray Tansill, 47, both of Portland, arrived and arrested them on a charge of operating the still.

PHONE HAZARD

ELY, Minn. (P)—Wayne Berry, a resort operator, found a new hazard to northwoods communications.

Tracking down the line after his phone went dead, he found a break. Tracks showed a bull moose got his antlers tangled in the wire and tore down a generous length of line in thrashing free.

The line was repaired and raised to accommodate passing bull moose.

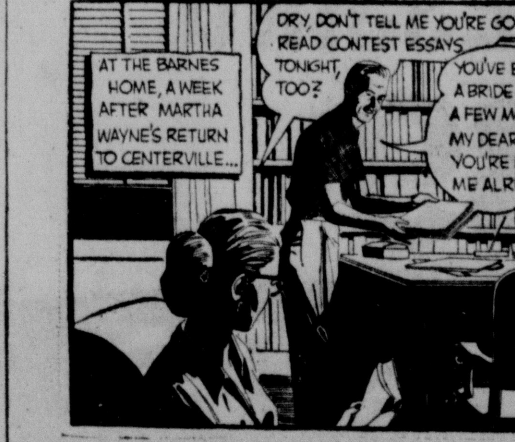

Members of a porpoise school communication by whistling.

GO TO CHURCH SUNDAY

THE STORY: Marshal Barney Blanchard has ridden with Pike Ambrose to meet Dan and Eric Clement, brothers suspected of holding Pete Dorsey, who was kidnapped from Blanchard. Blanchard gets yelled threats, but no help from the Clements.

IX
AWAY from The Narrows, the wind dropped and the air cleared some of dust. It was an easy, quiet ride until we were a mile from Hawk's ferry. Then Blanchard turned in the saddle.

"Pike, you don't like Blue Springs. And Blue Springs has got little time for you."

"That's their worry," I said, wondering what he was digging at.

"You thought a lot of Barney. Still you want to help me save Pete. You got to admit it doesn't make sense."

I got a little mad, without knowing why. "It makes sense to me, Harney. If you don't think so, why—"

"Whoa. Bank your fire. I'm in no position to argue with you. Like to know a little more about you, that's all. Who in particular you got your sights on?"

"Nobody in particular," I said, cooling off, feeling foolish. "It's a unborn town full of tinhorn folks. You saw that last night. What other town would stand for what happened?"

"I admit I've seen towns with more gumption."

Blanchard rode along without saying anything, seeing that I had the bit in my teeth. Crossing the prairie at an easy walk, I started to talk. I talked about Pa and what happened, letting the words come out just as fast as they came into my head. I told him how every time something was missing around town, folks looked squinty-eyed at me, Pike Ambrose, who never stole anything in his life, except a few eggs now and then and you can't getting in the way like a four-year-old will, then saw us and waved.

Blanchard said, "So that's a good woman, Pike."

"The only one in town worth salt."

Blanchard made a throat noise. "But Barney's widow. Think how you'd feel, in her place."

I got discouraged then. I just shook my head. I didn't know what more I could say to prove she was a good woman.

He said, "Suppose I said that she's back of it all, that she planned it and got the Clements to do it. What would you say?"

"I'd say you're crazy, Harney," Blanchard chuckled. "Now there's a straight answer. Let's talk to her again."

LILLIAN stopped working when we came into the yard. Dick came over and rubbed Pilot's nose. I couldn't see that Lillian was happy we came.

Blanchard said, "Wonder if we could talk a little more, Mrs. Jethroe."

"Certainly. If there's more to say."

I got down from Goliath and squeezed Dick's shoulder. He grinned at me. "Ma'am," I said, "we got to know about Cole. If they're waiting for Cole, it makes a big difference."

Lillian eyed Blanchard, who'd got down from Pilot. She said, "Do you want to know, Pike? Or does Mr. Blanchard want to know?"

"I . . . I guess that don't matter now," I said, looked at Blanchard.

"I'm surprised, marshal," Lillian said. "It had never occurred to me that Harney Blanchard might need help."

It wasn't a good thing to say and I couldn't rightly understand why she said it, except that she was worried and upset. Blanchard just shrugged, letting me keep the play. I said, "We need any help we can get, ma'am. Maybe Dan said something."

Lillian's eyes held to mine. "Pike . . . could I talk to you alone?"
